

After 100 years without the Khilafah, the Current State of the World Shows the Need for its Return

News:

A 100 years have passed since the Khilafah (Caliphate) was officially abolished on the 3rd of March 1924. On that date, the last Khalifah Abdulmajid II, was deposed and exiled, as what remained of the Ottoman possessions became a secular Turkish Republic, led by the traitor Mustafa Kemal. The Muslim lands were divided into weak and fragmented nation states, the failed states with corrupt agent rulers we see today. In the aftermath of abolishing the Khilafah, the Western colonial powers sliced up our lands according to the Sykes-Picot agreement and concurrent occupations of the territories that were under the domain of Islam for centuries.

Comment:

A century of humiliation, degradation, and suffering for the Ummah, and a century of division, political conspiracies, invasions, and colonialism in all its forms. A century of Western hegemony and dominance in world politics, and a century of the corruption of the Capitalist world order on full display for the world to see. The latest century has been one of humiliation and tragedy for the Ummah, as a direct consequence of the absence of Islam in state, life, and society, which the Western colonial powers have taken advantage of for too long.

This world order, which has manipulated public opinions around the world under the guise of the UN, human rights, and the mirage of the Western values, is losing its support and momentum, and is crumbling from within as well. As the massacres in Gaza continue by the Zionist occupation, and the United States is experiencing internal turmoil, the Western values and Capitalist world order, led by America, are being exposed to people around the world, prompting Muslims and non-Muslims alike to consider alternatives to this corrupt world order.

Meanwhile, the Khilafah, after 100 years of being absent, has become the call of the Muslims and is clearly the only solution to unite the Muslims and grant the Muslim lands safety, justice, and true governance according to Islam. The Khilafah is consequently the only political system capable of challenging the Western hegemony and control over global politics and affairs. The coming Khilafah, which has been promised as a victory when Allah wills, will unite this great Ummah politically, take a key role in global politics, and expose the hypocrisy of the supposed human rights that the West keeps hiding behind in attempts to save its face. This state will also show the Western populations an alternative form of governance with true justice and practical solutions to the problems that Capitalism have caused in the colonized, non-Western lands as well as in the West itself.
