

Press Release

The One Whose Friend is Allah will always have Muslims Standing by him; The One Whose Friend is America Will Stand Alone Some Day

As part of his visit to the US due to the Nuclear Security Summit held in Washington, President Erdogan had some meetings with President Obama, Vice President Joe Biden, US Secretary of State John Kerry and with US Jewish Organization representatives. Back from his journey, President Erdogan issued a statement to the press regarding the subjects of his meetings, as there were the PKK and PYD issue, ISIS, Syria and Iraq issue and the Turkey-"Israel"-relations. On top of the most striking issues was whether there exists a dissent between the US and Turkey on the PYD and YPG issue or not. Erdogan made the following statement: "During our meetings with Obama, Kerry and Biden, we expressed that we will not allow a PYD/YPG structuring in the South of Turkey. We spoke to Biden and Kerry; they too said that they will not allow a PYD-run state. As this was expressed by both, Kerry and Biden, there is nothing more to say."

As it is known, in order to implement its own political plan in the Syria issue; the USA has supported and the PYD and YPG politically and militarily and it still does. Although Turkey expresses that the PYD is a terrorist organization, the USA explicitly refuses this. At the current point, Erdogan's explanation constitutes no reply to the matter of whether the PYD is a terror organization or not. On the contrary, it is a "promise" given by the US that there will not be established a PYD-run state in the North of Syria. The US's such open support to the PYD, despite official authorities confirmed that it carried out the explosions in Turkey; shows in fact the true perpetrator behind this terror. The US "promise" in the manner of 'we will not allow a PYD-run state' is nothing else than jerking Turkey over. Because the US word is in no wise trustworthy. The US is an impertinent state. It makes use of every group and every state that cooperates for its own political and economic interests, as long it sees it appropriate and chokes them off after the task is completed.

And yet, Erdogan stated about the Syria issue in an interview with CNN: "the USA is the country who leads the work", and added afterwards that "Turkey wants to be an active part of the coalition forces." This statement qualifies as proof of the USA using Turkey for its dirty ambitions as much as needed. It is an overwhelmingly sad state of affairs that Erdogan voices Turkey's desire to work more with the USA in line with its colonial interests, whereas the Syrian Muslims expect Turkey to be a policy wonk over its soils future. The Muslims in Syria, Iraq, Palestine, Afghanistan and across the whole Muslim world, do see now that the USA is an invasive terror state. They know that any plans provided by the USA, the spearhead of Kufr, have never brought and will never bring anything else than occupation, oppression, plunder and exploitation. In that case, also the President should know this very well: a state that seeks to find a solution for Syria under the leadership of the USA cannot be a great state. A leader, who seeks to become an actor in the Iraq and Syria politics within the frame of an Obama doctrine, cannot be a great leader. Syria policy cannot be led through constructing concrete cities in a safe zone in the North of Syria. Even the proposal of such a solution shows how narrow Turkey's horizon is.

Erdogan, who takes steps to normalize Turkey-"Israel" relations, also had some meetings with representatives of Jewish associations, think-tank representatives and academics. At these meetings, he made the following statements regarding the relationship between Turkey and the USA: "In solving the problems we are facing it is obvious that there is no alternative to the Turkey-US alliance. We as Turkey struggle to canalize developments in a manner to serve regional and global peace. "Even though we feel alone in our struggle sometimes, we want to think that the USA is on our side..." We regard it as our Islamic and political responsibility to remind the President as follows: After the abolishment of the Khilafah, the world has suffered first a lot from the British, and then from America. These Kufr states have not left a single unlooted and unplundered span of our soils. And the leaders in our Muslim lands betrayed the Muslims by obeying England and America. Today, however, when we look back, all of them are remembered with their treason. The British and Americans are friends to the rulers who serve them, until they have completed their tasks. And then they never look at them again. Never forget this: America will never ever be a friend. The one whose friend is Allah will always have the Muslims standing by. The one whose friend is America will stand alone some day.
